

NEW PART NUMBER ANNOUNCEMENT

August 2010

Innovative Mass Air Flow (MAF) Sensor Probe Now Available

To say we're keyed up about our latest sensor probe is an understatement.

Delphi announces the introduction of its new mass air flow (MAF) sensor probe (AF10058) to its engine management product portfolio. This sensor design, which is an alternative to the traditional repair, provides unique benefits resulting in costs savings, more shelf space and easy installation.

WHAT IS DIFFERENT?

Our greener, wide-coverage, cost-effective, stock-friendly approach. Instead of replacing the entire MAF sensor including the plastic housing, Delphi has developed a repair alternative for six OE applications where the technician "unlocks" the sensor probe from the housing unit and replaces it with a new one. How? With a "key" included with every replacement sensor. It's as easy as one-two-three.

WHY THE CHANGE?

In most cases it's unnecessary to replace the plastic housing of the sensor. Usually it's the actual sensor probe that fails. Delphi's innovative alternative allows the technician to focus on the part needing replacement.

WHY AF10058?

- Stock ONE Delphi part to fit nearly EIGHT MILLION passenger car and light truck applications, including import and domestic late-model vehicles. AF10058 combines SIX OE Service MAF sensor SKUs into ONE Delphi MAF sensor probe for reduced inventory management. The dealer and our competitors require six SKUs.
- Saves money by eliminating the need to replace the plastic housing.
- It's our greener solution to repairs; eliminates manufacturing of plastic housing, and is packaged in a biodegradable plastic box.
- Replace OE with OE. It is not remanufactured. All new components are designed and manufactured by Delphi, which also ensures a correct ECM interface.
